Power together to create

Professional development workshops

A number of workshop sessions will run throughout the conference. You will be able to attend two of these and we ask you to select your preferences from the list below. Places are offered on a first come, first served basis and if your option isn't available you will be allocated an alternative.

Finding, Using and Sustaining your Personal Power – Alex Pett, River Leadership

Power is present in all interactions; sometimes the use of power is obvious and other times it is like a hidden force. We will explore how you can be effective by reading the power dynamics and deploying your power for good.

The Power of Cognitive Diversity – Jennifer Evans, GPP

To utilise our power effectively, we must identify where our natural preferences and optimal contributions lie, therefore making us most effective. Cognitive Diversity is proven to be the only differential enabling high-performing teams to succeed. Whether you are a leader or a specialist, this is a session that will define your personal potential and empower change.

Using your Power to Manage Relationships – Ian Critchley, Breadstone Levelstone

Relationships at work are complex, but are central to determining whether you love your job or hate it. This workshop looks at how we can actively manage others attitudes towards us by understanding what is behind them and knowing how to change them.

The Power of My Why – Sarah Cave, Primeast

Identify the 'why' of your purpose – personally and professionally. By re-discovering your 'why' you can build on your experiences and use your strengths and resilience more effectively. Define a clear direction, aligning your 'why' and personal values to support you to lead with consistency and clarity in the future.

Resilience – The Power you have to Take Charge – Martin Carver, Primeast

Managing under pressure is an essential business capability, with the need to build on your strengths and resilience in a way that does not impact negatively on you or others. Using your own power to enhance how you choose to respond to that stress and pressure will enable you to develop the necessary 'bounce-back-ability' and confidence to help you thrive.
